'Twas the Night before Karate

'Twas the night before Karate class, when all through the houses,
Not a white-belt was stirring,
not even the mouses.

The do-boks were hung
by the chimney with care,
In hopes that Master DonVito
soon would be there.

The children were nestled
all snug in their beds,
While visions of flying sidekicks danced in their heads.

When in the Dojang
there arose such a clatter,
They sprang from their beds
to see what was the matter.

They threw on their do-boks,
and tied on their belts,
Ate ten Christmas cookies
and some Chanukah gels.

When, what to their wondering
eyes should they sight,
But Master DonVito
all dressed in white.

Then in through the doors
his instructors they came,
Master DonVito shouted,
and called them by name.

Now, Mr. C!
Now, Ms. Lee!
Now, Mr. AJ!
On Figueroa,
on Miss Bailey
and Miss Patti!

Come teach for the day!
With a snap of his fingers,
he said, "Class line up fast,"
The kids moved like lightning, not wanting to be last.

He made them do blocks
and one million punches,
Jump-kicks and forms
and push-ups by the bunches.
And just when they thought they couldn't survive,
Class time was over,
their parents arrived.

So with a final bow
and a hearty "Tang Soo!"
They high-fived the teachers and off they flew.

He waved as they left
and gave a loud, "Ki-Ya!
Happy Christmas,
Merry Hanukkah,
Happy New Year,
I'll See Ya!"
